Call for Papers

Peace Research: The Canadian Journal of Peace and Conflict Studies is a multidisciplinary academic journal committed to publishing scholarly articles on the causes of war and conditions of peace. We interpret this broadly and encourage submissions that explore, for example, militarism, conflict resolution, peace movements, economic development, peace education, environmental protection, cultural advancement, social movements, religion and peace, humanism, human rights, and feminism, all of which have an impact on the field of peace and conflict studies. We invite scholars, both Canadian and global, to publish cutting edge research and analysis on peace and conflict issues from both disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives.

Articles should be submitted by email to peaceresearch@uwinnipeg.ca. The preferred length is 20–30 pages (approximately 6000–9000 words) typed, double-spaced (including all block quotes and endnotes), on 8.5 x 11 inch paper with 1 inch margins on each side using ragged right margin and 11 or 12 point font. We will consider articles that are shorter or longer than these guidelines if the subject of the article warrants it.

Preferably, your article submission should have four parts: 1) an unnumbered cover page that includes the author's name as it would appear in print, institutional affiliation, and contact information; 2) a separate unnumbered page with an abstract of the article not more than 150 words in length; 3) a separate unnumbered page with a 50 word biographical statement; 4) the manuscript itself with the title of the article on the top of the first page (not the author's name) and consecutive pagination beginning with page 1. Tables, graphs, charts, artwork, and photographs must be professionally readied for reproduction.

Articles published in Peace Research are evaluated in a double-blind peer review process. We encourage you to provide a list of possible reviewers for your article, including the institutional affiliation and email address for each potential reviewer. The provision of these names does not determine the Final selection of peer reviewers.
